

Jim Hunt Joins GeoCove

Orlando, FL (March 1, 2010)

GeoCove, Inc. of Orlando, Florida is pleased to announce the addition of Jim Hunt to the GeoCove team. Jim Hunt will be joining our team as a Sales and Marketing Consultant and will address the sales and marketing of the I2C product line and assist in business development. With Jim comes ten years of industry experience that will strengthen the company and benefit our customers.

Jim is a GISP who has served as a member of the GISCI Oversight Committee and assisted in developing the recertification process for the GISP certification. Jim's leadership experience in growing a business through sales, planning, budgeting, proposal writing, staff acquisition, needs assessment, and methodology and protocol development are some of the strengths he brings to the team. His business development skills also include database and application design, systems integration and systems maintenance which will be beneficial for project implementations.

We are happy to have Jim join our team and look forward to personally introducing you to him in the near future. For additional information please feel free to contact us at: GeoCove, Inc., (407) 210-3925 or info@geocove.com.

About GeoCove

GeoCove, Inc. provides scalable GIS programming and implementation solutions across a multitude of industries. The GeoCove team has extensive experience in providing support, design, customization, and implementation of the ESRI suite of GIS products. GeoCove's mobile products feature ArcGIS Server™ Mobile and ArcPad™ Solutions.

An ESRI Authorized Business Partner, GeoCove, Inc., is a privately held corporation located in central Florida. For more information on the I²C product, visit www.geocove.com

ESRI, ArcGIS, and ArcPad™ are trademarks, registered trademarks or service marks of Environmental Systems Research Institute, Inc. in the United States and other countries.